IEC MEANS QUALITY CRAFTSMANSHIP

When seeking an electrical contractor you want someone who is professional, safe, and trustworthy. IEC members are that and more. Join those who have chosen IEC and have been provided with excellence in electrical contracting.

IEC members are successful businesses that are actively involved in the electrical industry. Many IEC member companies embrace the latest market trends and construction methods such as the design/build construction model, expanding service market, green building projects, low voltage, and integrated systems market. These professional services represent the highly skilled workforce of IEC members.

IEC Members have a reputation for:

- Putting safety first
- Completing projects on time and on budget
- Receiving nationally recognized training

PROFESSIONAL, SAFE, TRUSTWORTHY

How to Select an Electrical Contractor?

- Provide potential contractors with as much detail as possible about your project so that you can accurately compare services.
- Always get at least three bids for a project. The lowest bid is not necessarily the best choice. Try to get an understanding from the contractors of why their bid is significantly lower or higher than the others. Their reasons may change your decision.
- Get recent references from the contractors you are considering. It is very important to see some of their work if possible.
- All project specifications, work schedule and payment terms should be written in the contract.
- Make sure that the contractor has the appropriate business and builder licenses as required by the local and state governments. Also the contractor should provide a certificate of insurance showing proof of general liability that meets state requirements.
